CHARLESTON CHOW

Delicious confluence of food, culture

By: S. L. Moore

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The nation’s oldest city, known for its architecture, history and culture, is also the site of some of the most delicious food in the United States. The city is home to a number of award-winning restaurants and chefs, including the famous Charleston Grill, where the food is as impressive as the views.

In Charleston, even the buildings are appetizing, such as Rainbow Row on East Bay Street.

In the style of the popular 19th-century magazine Architectural Record, the buildings feature brick facades and wrought-iron balconies.

The roof of Charleston’s City Market, completed in 1897, is a picturesque blend of brick and ironwork.

Follow your nose

The diverse neighborhoods within downtown Charleston are an attraction for foodies. The city is home to a number of award-winning restaurants and chefs, including the famous Charleston Grill, where the food is as impressive as the views.

In Charleston, even the buildings are appetizing, such as Rainbow Row on East Bay Street.

The roof of Charleston’s City Market, completed in 1897, is a picturesque blend of brick and ironwork.

Follow your nose

The diverse neighborhoods within downtown Charleston are an attraction for foodies. The city is home to a number of award-winning restaurants and chefs, including the famous Charleston Grill, where the food is as impressive as the views.

In Charleston, even the buildings are appetizing, such as Rainbow Row on East Bay Street.

The roof of Charleston’s City Market, completed in 1897, is a picturesque blend of brick and ironwork.

Follow your nose

The diverse neighborhoods within downtown Charleston are an attraction for foodies. The city is home to a number of award-winning restaurants and chefs, including the famous Charleston Grill, where the food is as impressive as the views.

In Charleston, even the buildings are appetizing, such as Rainbow Row on East Bay Street.

The roof of Charleston’s City Market, completed in 1897, is a picturesque blend of brick and ironwork.