No. 7 Charleston, South Carolina

14 of 21

It's easy to understand what consistently attracts travelers to the South Carolinian harbor city: brightly painted houses, streets lined with gnarled oak and jasmine trees, countless art galleries, and award-winning restaurants serving lowcountry cuisine. On warm, humid summer evenings, walk barefoot along the waterfront of Sullivan's Island and Folly Beach, just south of downtown, all covered in grass and soft sand dunes. Bed down at the cozy French Quarter Inn (you'll get a glass of champagne to begin the romantic celebration at check-in) or Zero George Street for its mahogany beds made with Kravet linens.
